HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Two mail carriers are to be added to the Burlington force.

An automobile went by sheriff's sale in Brandon this week for $110.

Twenty-six of 33 arrests made in Rutland the past month were for intoxication.

Of the 17 marriage licenses granted in Burlington in July, 11 were given to outsiders.

Actual work has commenced on the Silver Lake hydro-electric proposition advanced by the Horton Power company of Rutland.

Howard Hawthorne of Barnard died last Thursday as the result of a serious illness due to eating green apples and green gooseberries.

Mrs. Joseph Monteith of Richford has just completed a log cabin quilt (rising sun pattern) which contains 1,152 pieces. She is 67 years old.

Bennington boasts of a bicycle club which has 23 members. A campaign is under way to increase the membership to 60 by September.

Mrs. F. C. Slater of Underhill Center is being visited by her foster mother, Mrs. Crampton of Texas, who she had not seen in 23 years.

Because he impersonated a policeman at the circus grounds in St. Albans Saturday Henry Peters of that place was fined $8.70, which he paid.

A. A. Prouse of Rutland recently carried a party of men from there to Winthrop beach, just outside of Boston, in five and a half hours. The distance is 184 miles.

Essex is to have a new senior-junior school this fall and State Commissioner of Education Dr. Milo Hillegas has been looking the place over and giving advice about it this week.

From a dance at Evansville has started an epidemic of measles numbering over 25 cases. A young woman broke quarantine and attended the function and all the other cases followed.

Sixty-nine licenses for marriage were issued in Brattleboro during July and most of them were to outsiders who were married in Brattleboro on the same day they received the license.

Dr. Robert Lovett, as an expert, has been invited to represent Vermont at a conference of New York authorities in New York City on Saturday in respect to the epidemic of poliomyelitis.

A committee from the merchants' association of Burlington will be appointed to study the advantages that their city would derive from a large canal from Albany to Rouses Point by Lake Champlain and one of a system of four such canals.

Rev. David Ernest Adams, son of Prof. Charles D. Adams, of the department of Greek at Dartmouth college, has been called to the pastorate of the Payson church at Easthampton. Last summer he preached at South Woodbury and East Calais under the Vermont Domestic Missionary society, and this summer has supplied at Windsor. He will accept the call.

The last meeting of the committee appointed by the U. V. M. alumni to investigate the alleged anti-American activities of Professor Applemann, will be held on Saturday. The evidence has all been turned in and a report on the findings of the committee will be made to Mr. Stewart of Boston, who is expected home from abroad soon. Then it will probably be made public.

An artificial pond is in the course of construction near Barber's Pines in the vicinity of Bennington. On its shores there are being built three summer camps, bringing the total for that neighborhood up to 20, and underbrush and trees are being thinned over several acres of ground. The plot will be used as a picnic ground for Bennington and can be reached by trolley.

Major M. J. McDonough and Major James F. Bell, United States engineers of the war department at Albany, N. Y., met members of the Vermont McDonough commission in Vergennes this week to confer over the approval of plans for the memorial to be erected to Commodore McDonough and the building of the Champlain fleet there in 1813-14, to be erected on the park. It is expected to be completed this fall.

Potato Improvement Work Underway in Windsor County.

Potatoes may be improved in yielding power and freedom from disease by seed selection. Last year six farmers in Windsor county co-operated with the county agent in carrying out the tuber unit method of potato improvement. From 25 to 100 potatoes of the desired size, shape and quality were selected from the stock of seed. Each potato was cut into four parts of as equal size as possible. The four pieces from each potato were planted consecutively so that each set of four hills represented the progeny from a single potato. At digging time each group of four hills was kept separate, weighed and noted for uniformity, quality, etc. The 10 best groups were kept for planting this year, thus the unit this year became the product from four hills instead of a single potato.

By this means a strain of high yielding potatoes free from disease will be obtained. The probability will be that seed will be secured from the farmers doing the selecting, and the yield per acre of the whole community will be raised.

This work is now being done in a demonstration way in the towns of Springfield, Ludlow, Woodstock and Stockbridge. Various other farmers in the county are starting this work through suggestion of the county agent.

PLAINFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Bolles, son and daughter and Wayland Page of Plainfield went to South Lebanon on Sunday and called on Herbert Bean and family.

THROWN FROM A HORSE.

Antoine Therrien of Highgate Center Seriously Injured.

Highgate Center, Aug. 2.—Antoine Therrien is in a serious condition from the effects of injuries suffered when he was thrown from a horse which he was riding, striking on the back of his head and neck. He was carried to the home of his father, Lucien Therrien, and Dr. C. E. Allen of Swanton and P. E. McCweeney of Burlington were called as counsel with Dr. D. O. Powers. The man is partially paralyzed.

The Notification Address.

Charles E. Hughes entered the presidential campaign last night with an address which sums up with unmistakable force the national issues now before the people. It is in measure a party pronouncement, but the chief significance of its well chosen and well-weighted words is that of a sledge-hammer arraignment of the administration which no executive can evade by asking, like the giant in the Scandinavian legend, "Did a leaf fall?" Its declaration of Republican principles glides off as a mere overture.

Mr. Hughes aims his first blow at the appointments, his purpose being to show that through these, and especially by the withdrawal of Mr. Herrick from France, we lost "the respect of the world" at the very beginning. The vulnerable Mexican record is then characterized as "a confused chapter of blunders," with Mexico figuring as "the helpless victim of a condition of anarchy which the course of the administration only served to promote." With the precision of an inquisitor and the relentlessness of a judge he passes the undisputed facts in review, holding that our methods were such as to exasperate the Mexicans instead of winning their good will, that our embargo policy lacked all consistency, that we intervened while pretending not to intervene and actually invaded Mexico for an object which we left unaccomplished. "It is a record," he maintains, "which cannot be examined without a profound sense of humiliation." And he does not spare what he calls the clash between the conduct of the administration and its professions.

But the criticism of our recent Mexican policy is only an interlude. Mr. Hughes links up his claim that we lost the respect of the world with his survey of our relations with Europe. It was for us to maintain the integrity of international law, to vindicate our rights as neutrals, to protect the lives and property of our citizens. Effectively we did none of these things. "What does it avail?" asked the candidate, "to employ some of the strongest words known to diplomacy if ambassadors can receive the impression that the words are not to be taken seriously?" And he believes that "had this government left no doubt that when we said 'strict accountability' we meant precisely what we said, and that we should unhesitatingly vindicate that position," there "would have been no destruction of American lives." Mr. Hughes has much to say of the necessity of preparedness, and he distinguishes sharply between being ready and being engaged in "militarism." Other reforms have his advocacy, woman suffrage among them. But the note in his address which will reverberate in its criticism of Democratic policies since President Wilson entered the White House in 1913.—Boston Herald.

Highway Detours.

The automobile tourist who remembers that the Latin "de" has a meaning of "taking from" is firmly convinced that a "detour" is something that takes the joy out of a tour. That may not be its primary purpose, but the result is the same. Yet detours over all but impassable roads, and even through pastures, woodlots and gullies where there has been no pretense of a road, are necessary evils until the good roads movement is much more advanced than at present. The improved highways in which the autoists rejoice must be the result of many weeks of work and that, too, in the summer months when the motor travel is greatest. It is hardly reasonable to expect the state or the town to spend a lot of money in improving a detour which is for use only while the main highway is under construction or repair.

Yet in spite of these considerations the highway commissioners of New England states have been flooded this summer with complaints against the condition of various detours. The Maine commissioners have been forced to come out with a lengthy explanation and defense, since the complaints became too numerous to answer by individual letters. Maine is engaged in an ambitious program of good roads building and is making remarkable progress when we remember that its area is equal to that of the five other New England states put together and its population less than that of Boston.

Both New Hampshire and Vermont have put their highways into splendid condition, but, of course, there must be repairs and work of maintenance every summer. Massachusetts, a pioneer in improved highways, has its detour as bad as the worst, especially in the western part of the state, as every Mohawk trail tourist is discovering, but the tourist who puts a good supply of philosophy and patience into his outfit will get through all right. Of course the excessive rainfall has made the bad detours worse, and there is far more motor travel this summer than ever before. But a detour is only a temporary inconvenience, just as it is a necessary one and the tourist who can relieve his feelings by writing a letter of complaint should by all means write it—and then tear it up.—Boston Herald.

Southern yellow pine cut in the United States last year amounted to 30 per cent of the total lumber production.
